Keep the Kidneys Well.

Health is Worth Saving, and Some Norway People Know How to Save It.

Many Norway people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Sick kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health, but there is no need to suffer nor to remain in danger when all diseases and aches and pains due to weak kidneys can be quickly and permanently cured by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. The following statement leaves no ground for doubt.

Mrs. Susan F. Harlow, Skillings Ave., South Paris, Me., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills on several occasions and have always found them to be a good kidney remedy. They strengthened my kidneys and were very effective in relieving the other symptoms of kidney complaint from which I suffered so severely. Recently, feeling that my kidneys needed a tonic, I procured Doan's Kidney Pills and I had taken but a few doses before I was relieved. I continued using the remedy and I have since felt better in every way." 20-21

Mine Own.

Where art thou my beloved? Thou hast wandered far from me. I have searched the many lands, across the boundless sea. I seek for my beloved and yet afar. But vain my search, and fruitless, as pursuit of distant star. Hope I have lost, I follow on nor cease the weary quest. Nor ever stop, not turn aside, nor can I pause for rest. My longing spurs me onward, there is never rest for me. Until my eyes are satisfied, beloved, by sight of thee. For thou art mine; nor time, nor space, nor all eternity Can bar my questing heart from thine, nor sunder thee from me!

Keep the Kidneys Well.

Health is Worth Saving, and Some Norway People Know How to Save It.

Many Norway people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Sick kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health, but there is no need to suffer nor to remain in danger when all diseases and aches and pains due to weak kidneys can be quickly and permanently cured by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. The following statement leaves no ground for doubt.

Mrs. Susan F. Harlow, Skillings Ave., South Paris, Me., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills on several occasions and have always found them to be a good kidney remedy. They strengthened my kidneys and were very effective in relieving the other symptoms of kidney complaint from which I suffered so severely. Recently, feeling that my kidneys needed a tonic, I procured Doan's Kidney Pills and I had taken but a few doses before I was relieved. I continued using the remedy and I have since felt better in every way." 20-21

"The NORWAY ADVERTISER, Norway, Maine.

Enclosed find copy of newspaper announcement which I have been requested by the civil service commission to have printed. Kindly print as a newspaper item, as there is no appropriation for paying for newspaper advertising. If you do not care to print as a news item kindly return in the enclosed envelope. (There was no envelope enclosed.) Sincerely,

We receive one of these communications every time a new postmaster is wanted for a postoffice in this vicinity and we presume that newspapers in other localities receive the same. Accompanying this modest request is always copy for an advertisement that would take space in a paper for one week anywhere from $2.00 upward according to the rates of the circulation of the paper. Why shouldn't the government pay for this advertising, as it is purely advertising matter and cannot in any way be twisted into a news item?

The papers throughout the state of Maine also receive from time to time advertising for meetings for summer schools, agricultural meetings, pomological meetings, denominational meetings, and in fact numerous kinds of meetings, and they are always asked to do this advertising free as where from $5 to $10, and that isn't the worst of it. Most of these meetings have to have more or less printing, such as programs, etc., and do they give this paid printing to help in any way the newspapers in the locality where they ask these same newspapers to advertise for them free? Not at all.

The United States runs a printing office, the state runs a printing office, the different societies run printing offices or have places where they get their printing cheap or for nothing at the expense of the people. Why shouldn't they pay the newspapers for the work they do? Especially as few country newspapers get sufficient money outside their job offices and advertising to meet running expenses.

Man and Fisherman.

A Vacation Parable.
Sunday is a hard day for children and fishermen. Children want to play and fishermen want to fish. Especially is it hard for the fisherman "to be good" when the day is a bit cloudy and muggy. That is the day when a fish is happiest and hungriest! Such was the meditation of a certain fisherman, who was also, I grieve to say, a minister, therefore bound "to be good!" He sat at the camp door and watched the others push off their canoes, or rally down the forest trail with poles on their shoulders. In order, to give virtue the constraint of custom, he had put on his Sunday habit, and with the extra defense against "our ancient foe" of a cotton umbrella, he now set forth "to commune with Nature."

All went well for several hours with his good resolutions. He explored a new trail; he found undiscovered flowers; he even started a deer from its hiding; and now, satisfied with Nature and himself, he was coming back without soot upon his Sunday clothes. When he stood by the shore of a little mountain lake! To go around it was a rough trail. How harmless it would be to be set across in a gliding canoe! He scanned the lake, and there at the far end was one solitary boat! Just the thing! A boat is no worse than an electric car! He whistled; the man turned and rowed toward him. Yes, of course he would put him across, though evidently surprised at his Sunday raiment. He had been fishing, he said, all the morning, and not a strike, though running two lines. Would not the parson hold one of them while he himself managed the boat? Oh, wiles of the wilderness and poor human nature! Surely just to hold a line is not to go fishing; besides, today there is "no fishing!"

Swish—tug—tighten—strike! "There's something on that line!" cries the guide! "Easy! let him have it! He pulls hard. He's a good one; slow up or you will lose him!" But this is Sunday, and this is fishing, and you are a minister! Sunday? One must not throw away good food on the Sabbath at the present high "cost of living." Minister? "A man's a man for that." Can a man get a fish that is hooked? "Let goods and kindness go!" Send in your resignation—surrender your profession! Anything, only hold on to that fish!

And he did as Peter or Andrew would have done! And what was better, the fish held, and the line held, and after 20 minutes of pulling and slacking, drawing in to this side and that, with the big, lithe body now up close, and then diving under for a last struggle, the net in the hand of the guide suddenly slipped under him, and he was lifted out of the splash and spatter clean into the boat.

"Well, he's yours, and he's a whale!" cried the guide.

"Oh, no; he's yours," said the parson. "But you caught him," said the guide.

"But it was your line," said the parson. And then the man in the parson spoke out: "Yes, he is mine! And he is a whale." Soon down the forest trail and up to the camp door came the fishing parson. They were all there, of course, to see him come in—all those Sabbath-breakers! But he held up his head. He braved their laughter for about twelve minutes, and then he stepped to the scales at the end of the cabin. For he knew that, though his Sunday habit was spattered, if not spoiled, he was weighing an eight and a half pound trout.

"Boys," laughed the guide, "the parson has caught the biggest fish of you all—and with a cotton umbrella!"

The Making of a Lake.

Within a few miles of Wilson's Mills, where six months ago was forest and silence broken only by the wing of the wild bird or the deer that roamed within its shelter, is now a thriving village in miniature, hundreds of acres of cleared land and the hum and bustle of industrial forces.

Magalloway river, a tributary of the Androscoggin, the Androscoggin Reservoir company is constructing a great dam, to form one of the largest storage reservoirs for water in the world.

This storage basin, when completed, will contain about eight billion cubic feet of water, and will add nearly 50 per cent to the storage system of this region. A new lake will be formed which will be about ten and a half square miles in area and 12 miles in length.

At the outset it should be understood that this is not a power scheme, but one of storage. There will be no revenue to be derived from this storage proposition except as it comes through the increased amount of power at the different sites where mills and manufacturing are established along the river. This plan is in line with the policy of the United States government, in the conservation of its natural resources, and in accordance with ideas of Maine men who believe that the waterpower of this State and its lakes and rivers should be developed for the benefit of the people of the State.

The plan is to save a vast amount of flood water which has been and is now wasted, and to put it to use and reduce the consumption of coal which would otherwise be needed for the development of power. The only difference between this plan and the plan proposed by the government and by private individuals, is that the money for this development, which will amount to several hundred thousand dollars, is to be furnished by the corporations who are interested in the use of this water storage, instead of by the State or by the National Government.

In order to proceed with this work the Androscoggin Reservoir company obtained charter rights from the Legislature of 1909.

The drainage area amounting to about 1,005 square miles above Errol Dam is divided into parts of about equal area. The eastern part comprises the two Richardson lakes, controlled by Middle Dam; Moosehuckmegantic and Cuscutic lakes, controlled by Upper Dam; and Rangeley lake controlled by Rangeley Dam and Kennebec lake, the latter not being used for storage purposes. The western part of the drainage area containing about 500 square miles has with its limits only Umbagog lake, which is not large enough to hold the flood waters of the spring, so that yearly vast quantities of water are wasted for lack of storage facilities.

The Androscoggin Reservoir company is constructing its dam at the head of Aziscoobas Falls, to form the new storage for this entire area. The present storage capacity in existing lakes is about 16 billion cubic feet. The proposed new lake to be made by this new dam will add eight billion cubic feet of water to the reserve. At the site of the new dam the river comes down through a narrow gorge between hills and borings show that the bed of the river is solid ledge. Above the dam the valley broadens, varying in width from one-half mile to two miles, and the new lake will extend into the upper valley for about twelve miles. This valley is almost entirely composed of swampy, marshy land, covered with a growth of small trees. For a great many years a wooden dam has occupied the site of this new dam, and this was used for log driving purposes only. This dam already flows about two-thirds of the area to be covered by the proposed lake, or about 6 1/2 square miles. The new lake, when filled, will include about 10 1/2 square miles.

The work on this enterprise was begun last October and among other things which have already been accomplished is the building of a fine gravelled road a mile and one-half long. The old dam has been repaired and a log sluice built, which will be used for the taking of logs over the excavations in the bend of the river and to carry the water during the summer season, so that the construction of the permanent dam may not be interfered with. This sluice is 550 feet long.

Before this, two camps have been built there, each accommodating 40 men, a building has been erected containing 40 rooms, for the carpenters and foremen; a mess camp, with seating capacity for 320 men; two blacksmith shops; a store; a feed house; and a stable. The new lake, when filled, will be furnished; stables that hold 80 horses; an ice house; two cement sheds, each holding 500 barrels; two camps for engineers and superintendents; four extra buildings which have been constructed by the working men themselves; a number of houses built by the Italian laborers, and other buildings, put up as needed, for various purposes. These houses or camps, are all substantially and comfortably built, and running water comes into each from a mountain brook.

The land has been cleared of trees for a distance of 200 feet from the buildings. Two large cable-way towers have been put up, the cable connecting these weighing seven tons. It is made of 2 1/2 inch wire rope, has a 1,200 foot span and over all is 1,550 feet.

In order to have lumber for the buildings a saw mill was established which will also be used for preparing lumber for use in the dam. Twelve boilers, with capacity from 30 to 50 horse power have been installed on the works.

About 275 men are now employed, and the blasting and preparing for actual building of the dam is well under way. It is expected to start the laying of the concrete about the first of June.

THE SHERIDAN THEY KNEW.

English Vicar Serves as the Awful Example at a Temperance Lecture.

A POPULAR temperance lecturer was giving a lecture in a village on the joys of abstinence. His method of sending home his points was to illustrate each statement with an anecdote, and as he could generally keep his audience amused, he usually made excellent headway on behalf of his cause.

At this particular meeting, however, over which the local vicar was presiding, he could not rouse the slightest smile or sign of interest in the bucolic countenances before him. Anecdote after anecdote only served to make his audience more jethargic than at the beginning.

Finally he began: "Now, you must not think that the generations before this were any better than we are in respect of alcoholism. Not so long ago it was not only the custom, but even the fashion, for the young fellows of the period to get drunk every night and to illustrate this point I'll just tell you a tale about Sheridan. (Sensation) Now, Sheridan was one night coming home as drunk as a lord. (More sensation and a stray giggle. "Fetched 'em," said the lecturer to himself.) Yes, Sheridan—our good old Sheridan! (A roar of laughter. The lecturer brightened up.)—He was kicking on his back in the street." (Shrieks and roars of laughter.)

The anecdote of Sheridan lying in the gutter waiting while the houses whirled round for his own to arrive was related. The effect was tremendous. The period to get drunk every night and to illustrate this point I'll just tell you a tale about Sheridan. (Sensation) Now, Sheridan was one night coming home as drunk as a lord. (More sensation and a stray giggle. "Fetched 'em," said the lecturer to himself.) Yes, Sheridan—our good old Sheridan! (A roar of laughter. The lecturer brightened up.)—He was kicking on his back in the street." (Shrieks and roars of laughter.)

"Well, sir, what is it?" said the delighted lecturer.

"My name is Sheridan. I am the only Sheridan these people have ever heard of," was the disconcerting reply.—London Answers.

Wished Him Well.

The brisk young man with the valise rang the doorbell.

"Good morning, sir," said the caller. "I am introducing in this neighborhood an indispensable little household utensil which I think you would like to look at."

Here he opened his valise and took out a small metallic implement.

"It is, as you see, a can opener, a corkscrew, a paper cutter, a screw-driver, a file, a—"

"Yes, I see, but I think I don't care to buy."

"Oh, it's cheap enough, but we don't need it."

"You haven't anything of the kind, have you?"

"Yes, there's one just like it somewhere around the house. Young fellow, I hope you'll make more money out of that than I did."

"More than you did? Why, did you ever handle it?"

"Yes; I invented the blamed thing. Sold the patent for $187.50. Good morning."—Chicago Tribune.

Seance.

Dam, Countess, by Mambrino King, black stallion, 15.2 1-2 hands, 1025 lbs. Count Direct, a son of Direct Hal 2.04 1/2 and The Countess, by Mambrino King attracted the attention of our thoughtful breeders to him as a sire, through the performance of the three year old filly, Countess Chimes last season. She was the first of his get to be trained. She showed quarters in 33 seconds. There were days last fall when she could have shown a full mile in 2.30 or better. That she impressed others as being a fast trotting filly, will add that Walter Cox of Dover, N. H. bought her of Geo. Bonnalie last fall. That fact alone is no small compliment to Count Direct.

In the Western Land.

Los Angeles is so cosmopolitan that residents of 23 states have state Associations which meet at least once a year and have a general good time in getting acquainted, meeting old friends and talking over old times. At the Iowa reunion last February it was estimated that there were 30,000 Iowans present. At the South Dakota annual picnic at East Lee Park, which attended, there was a vast crowd present. Each county had a banner and register, and there were many pleasant reunions.

When in Los Angeles before, I attended the Maine Association. It has now merged with the New England Association which I attended at Portland's Hall one evening. There were about five hundred present, about one hundred being from Maine. There were representatives from every New England state. It was called and conducted upon the plan of the old fashioned town meeting, a good deal of good natured sport was had and a general good time was enjoyed by all.

While in Los Angeles I had the pleasure of meeting Mrs. Annie Whiting, a former Lowell girl. Her home has for many years been in Chipewah Falls, Wis. Her husband is dead and she has been spending the winter in Los Angeles. Another Lowell boy that had not met for many years was Oliver McDaniel, son of John McDaniel. Compelled, owing to failing health, to leave Washington, he came to Los Angeles about three years ago, and is now in robust health and thinks that there is no such country in the world as that part of South California.

On March 14th I started on my return trip to South Dakota. My ticket was a nine months' tourist ticket, over the Santa Fe, and allowed of my making as many stops as I wished along the way. I made my first stop at Williams, about 80 miles from Los Angeles, with an old South Dakota friend, Dr. E. E. Still. He came there about twenty years ago, a complete physical wreck. He took a homestead in the foot hills about four miles from town, where, by combining farming, stock and poultry raising and doctoring, he has regained his health, and while not rich in gold and silver, he feels that he has a fortune in his four robust boys, his two bright daughters and a contented happy wife, that gold cannot buy. On my way to Parris I passed through Riverside, San Bernardino, Readlands and Colton, all located in lovely valleys, and one of the great centers of the orange belts of South California.

To the tourist with plenty of time and money at his disposal, a trip over the Santa Fe offers many attractions. On my return from California, six years ago I stopped off at Williams, Arizona, and made the side trip by rail to the Grand Canyon of the Colorado, 65 miles distant. The extra cost of the trip was about $13.00, which included railroad fare, hotel expenses for one day and night, a carriage ride to the rim and a guide and mule ride over the trail three miles to the plateau 3,500 feet below, and a mile beyond to the chasm 1,300 feet deep at the foot of which the Colorado river rolls and tumbles in its swift passage to the sea some 300 miles away.

The canyon said to be over a hundred miles long, thirteen miles wide and a mile deep and is without doubt, the greatest natural wonder in the world. In comparison the Royal Gorge is but a crevice and Niagara Falls a tiny rivulet, and within its mighty depths a thousand Mr. Washingtons could be safely stored away. All around for many miles the country is a level plateau seven thousand feet above the level of the sea, and covered with quite a heavy growth of pine timber, and until you stand upon the very edge do you realize that you are gazing upon nature's greatest work.

After leaving Parris, the first stop that I made was at Albuquerque, N. M., where I visited a part of two days with one of Lovell Center's native sons, the Rev. Josiah H. D. Since I visited there six years ago, his field of labor has been greatly enlarged, and new honors bestowed upon him. He is now superintendent of the Mexican missions of both N. M. and Arizona, and the great D. D. has been conferred upon him by Bates college. Mrs. Heald is also an ordained minister and is a great help to him in his ministerial work. Their three sons and one daughter are all receiving that higher education that is to fit them for life's labors wherever duty calls.

The Congregational church is doing a great work along religious and educational lines, amongst the Mexican people in this section. They have a large industrial school and farm a few miles out of Albuquerque, where the Mexican youth are taught not only in the higher branches of book learning, but the girls are taught in the art of house-keeping, and the boys how to make good farmers and thorough up to date American citizens.

Albuquerque is a city of about 25,000 population situated near the banks of the Rio Grande river, which here is a slow sluggish stream with low banks and subject to overflow. The city has many fine public and private buildings, and many manufacturing plants. It has one of the largest saw-mills in the West, the logs for which are hauled from the mountains nearly a hundred miles away over a steep railroad. It is also a noted health resort. Its high altitude (4,925 feet) dry atmosphere, temperate climate all the year round, and its bright sunshine almost every day in the year makes it an ideal climate for weak and consumptive people. Many people live all the year in tent houses and gain both health and strength by living close to nature.

At Mexico, is, like Arizona, in the arid belt, and a very small proportion of the soil can be reached by irrigation. I often wonder what is to be the future of the great arid belt of the West, covering an area of at least 1,000 miles square and embracing within its limits the greater part of ten large states, and I have solved the mystery in my own mind in this way. When in the course of a hundred years from now, Canada and Mexico of their own free will have become a part of this great nation, and our population shall have doubled twice, it is easy to figure out on paper a population of more than five hundred million of free born American citizens.

When that time comes, as it is sure to come, then this great desert waste will be the great playground and health resort of the nation. Twenty years from now there will be no cheap agricultural lands in the West. And the old abandoned farms of New England and the eastern states will be bought up by the thrifty foreigner who comes from abroad, and the laboring men of our cities who are becoming land hungry, and who long for a little home that they can call their own.

From Los Angeles to Albuquerque is 383 miles and from the latter place to Kansas City 918 miles, and I must resume my journey or I will never get home. My next stop was at Hamburg and Riverton, Iowa, about fifty miles south of Council bluffs, where I enjoyed a very pleasant visit with old time South Dakota friends. Choice farms are selling for from one hundred and fifty to two hundred dollars per acre, and many of the land hungry people are going West or to Canada in search of the cheap lands that will soon be gone.

Continuing my journey, my next stop was at Atlantic, Iowa, where I had a pleasant visit with Isaac S. Andrews and family. His six boys are all girls but one, James, who is assisting his father on the farm. The Mary Boorman, daughter of John McDaniel, lives at Atlantic. Her husband is quite a noted lawyer and platform lecturer. At the time of my visit, Mrs. Boorman was sadly afflicted with inflammatory rheumatism.

At Exira, Audubon county, my home for four years before going to South Dakota, I called on many old time friends, and amongst them were Abbie, Nathan and William Andrews, children of Willis Andrews formerly of Lowell. They keep a market garden and small fruit farm, and are making and saving money.

Albert Andrews and wife also live here and keep a boarding house. He is a brother of John Andrews, who lives in Conway, N. H. I also had a very pleasant visit with my boyhood companion and schoolmate, H. F. Andrews. He has served his county at various times as Clerk, County Judge and State Senator. He is a lawyer by profession, but has devoted much time and money in preparing and publishing a history of the Andrews and Hamblin families. His children, five boys and one daughter, all live in the western part of Wyoming. Last fall he visited them and had the time of his life, hunting elk deer and other big game in the mountain section of Wyoming. He is organizing a hunting party to go out there next fall. The expense of the trip will be about two hundred dollars besides the railroad fare. Each hunter is to take out a license, only two elk can be shot by a hunter. For the first one killed, fifty dollars will be charged, and for the next one, thirty dollars.

My next and last visit was with Wilbur and Ella Stearns at Audubon. Audubon Co. Will (they call him Doctor, at home) has a fine home and is a model citizen. He has been elected assessor ever since he has lived in his present location, nearly thirty years, except one term when he was visiting down in Maine. His nephew, a son of Stephen Stearns, is helping him with his farm work. Ella Stearns is now on her fourth year as superintendent of the Audubon Co. schools, so popular is she with both old and young, that it is thought she will be elected to her third term next fall without any opposition.

On Saturday, April 2d, I took the train for home where I arrived in due time. Corn planting is under way all along the line here. Early sown oats are looking well, but most of the fruit was killed by the cold frosty nights that followed the six weeks of extra fine weather that we had in March and April. On the 16th I go to Yankton to attend the annual Grand lodge meeting of the I. O. O. F., and on the 25th expect to start for Ohio by the way of Madison, Wis., and visit for two days with Henry Heald and wife, then go to Cleveland, Ohio, where I will spend the summer with my daughter, and fish for the big fish in the waters of Lake Erie. Yours truly, JOSEPH ANDREWS. May 14, 1910. Hurley, S. D.

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs, causing catarrh of the bladder, brick-dust or sediment in the urine, head ache, back ache, lame back, dizziness, sleeplessness, nervousness, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell.

Bladder troubles almost always result from a derangement of the kidneys and better health in that organ is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. Swamp-Root corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy is soon realized. It stands the highest because of its remarkable health restoring properties. A trial will convince anyone.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, and don't let a dealer sell you something in place of Swamp-Root—if you do you will be disappointed.

Buy a Barrel of This Flour

You will find it real economy to buy the famous William Tell Flour by the barrel.

You will not only protect yourself against advances in price due to "wheat corners" and crop conditions, but you will always be sure of the finest grained bread—the whitest bread—the lightest biscuit—the most delicious pastry that can be baked.

Note how much cleaner William Tell is than other flours—due to the costly equipment of the Ansted & Burk Company's mills for protecting the grain and flour in grinding.

Ask your dealer and insist on having—

Light in Weight. Holds Perfect Shape.
The L. & H. Sennett Straws are made for Summer wear, not just to keep the sun off. Though of an extremely light weight, they retain their shape because of the L. & H. sizing and special drying and pressing process. Edges are carefully treated to prevent breaking down. The oval is so shaped as to make an easy and comfortable fit, so that an L. & H. stays on without binding the head. The silk trimmings and linings are those that appeal to the well-dressed man. The "Man who Cares" lays his hat down so that the L. & H. mark shows. Made in many proportions as to height of crown and width of brim, so that every well-dressed man can be suited.
